

CURRENT COMMENT.

HARRY COCHRANE, not long ago a popular actor, is a ragged beggar in London. Rum ruined him.

In the Montana cattle towns a newspaper, share, and a glass of whisky all cost the same price, namely, twenty-five cents.

Since the development of tree culture the forests of Europe have increased from one-sixth to one-fifth of the entire territory.

The founder of co-operation in Germany, Schulze-Delitzsch, has left a manuscript romance dealing with the social problems of the day.

The famous theater La Scala, at Milan, which has been permitted to fall into a disgraceful state of structural decay, is at last to undergo restoration.

The rough and most diamonds exported from the Division of Kimberley, in South Africa, during August last weighed 187,805.32 carats; the declared value was $2,358,812.

FIROZ states that $300,000 is the correct sum guaranteed Mrs. Sarah Bernhardt for her forthcoming tour in America under the joint management of Messrs. Abbey and Grau. This is a great improvement on the financial results of her first tour, when the great tragedienne took back only $40,000.

It is said that when Sarah Bernhardt plays Lady Macbeth she so keeps to literal historical accuracy that she appears on the stage with her feet as Heaven fashioned them. This is akin to the actor, who, when he appeared in "Othello," so entered into the spirit of the part that he knocked himself all over.

A young widow, in erecting a monument to the "dear departed" cleverly availed herself of the opportunity to inscribe on the tomb: "Sacred to the memory of Mathias Bouchet, who departed this life, aged sixty-eight years, regretting the necessity of parting from the most charming and best of women."

The untimely death of the Hon. Gilbert Leigh, heir of Baron Leigh of Stoneleigh, out West, has thrown a gloom over society in Warwickshire, England, where he is much regretted. The Hon. Dudley Leigh, to whose ranch he went on a visit, is now the heir to the barony. His uncle, a clergyman of the Episcopal Church, married a daughter of Mrs. Fannie Kemble, and resided at Butlerstown, near Philadelphia, for years.

The Cumberland Presbyterian Church, which is distinct from all other branches of Presbyterianism, lately published its figures for the year, showing a membership of 122,000, made up of 4,262 churches. These churches are served, as far as can be, by 1,503 ministers. The conversions number 8,960, which is about four to a church, or six and a half to each minister. The infant baptisms number 1,743, which is at the rate of about three-quarters of an infant to each.

MR. BANERMAN, the new Secretary for Ireland, is, like Mr. Trevelyan, his predecessor, a Scotch member, a son of Sir James Campbell of Fortarishie. He assumed the surname of Banerman. He is forty-eight years old, and belongs to the Radical section of the House of Commons. It seems strange that Ireland, which contributes an Irishman to every point of difficulty—a Wolsley to Egypt, a Dufferin to India, and a Robinson to South Africa—should not be permitted one of her own sons to manage her own affairs.

The Prince of Wales is the greatest Colonel in a numerical sense, the world has ever known. To say nothing of his Honorary Colonels in foreign armies, besides the headship of the British Hussars, he is the Colonel of no fewer than sixteen regiments in his royal mother's army. He is Colonel-in-Chief of all the three regiments of the Household Cavalry and Colonel of the Tenth Hussars. In the Indian army he is Honorary Colonel of the Sixth and Eleventh Bengal Cavalry, the Second Bengal Infantry, the Second Gorkha, the Guide Corps, the Fourth Madras Cavalry, the Madras Sappers and Miners, the Third Bombay Cavalry, and the Second Bombay Native Infantry. He figures in the army list as holding three honorary colonelcies in the militia, the commands being of the Second Brigade, Eastern Division Military Artillery (Lord Suffield's regiment), the Cornwall militia; and he is Captain-General and Colonel of the Honorable Artillery Company.

The Modir of Dongola, England's only friend in the Sudan, is a slight, delicate man, with a pale, pensive face, lighted up by two large, black, luminous eyes, which seem to be always looking into space, and from which projects a preternaturally large nose, hooked like a vulture's beak. The effect of his extreme piety on the Mussulman population is very marked, and has enabled him to maintain himself in power almost within arm's reach of the Mahdi. He is only visible for a short time each day before public prayers, which all officers, civil and military, are bound to attend. On these occasions he sits on a carpet, and, holding his hands in one hand, places a large Koran, resembling a family Bible, before him, while a companion squats in front, at the opposite end of the room, holding a similar volume, from which he reads. This performance is a splendid-looking Sultan, over six feet tall, and a cousin of the Mahdi, a fact which excites much commotion.

THE PLenary COUNCIL.

Opening of the Third Plenary Council of the Roman Catholic Church in the United States at Baltimore—An Imposing Pageant and Impressive Services.—Three Weeks' Closed Session to Follow.

BALTIMORE, Md., November 11.—It is doubtful if in the history of the Catholic Church in America there has ever been religious ceremonies as grand and impressive as those attending the opening of the Third Plenary Council at the Cathedral in this city yesterday. Certainly not since 1866 when the last Plenary Council was held in the same edifice.

The ceremonies consisted of a solemn procession of the clergy, Pontifical High Mass and the formal opening of the Council. The streets in the vicinity of the Cathedral, long before the hour appointed for the procession were densely crowded with people of all denominations. Ten thousand would be a fair estimate of the number.

At 10:30 a. m. the Most Rev. Archbishop Rt. Rev. Bishops, Rt. Rev. Most Rev. Abbots, Rt. Rev. and Very Rev. Monks, Very Rev. Administrators and Procurators, met in the Archbishop's residence on North Charles street. The most magnificent of the Council, the visiting clergy and seminarians of St. Stephen met at St. Alphonsus' Hall.

At 10:30 a. m. the procession left St. Alphonsus' Hall and proceeded to the Archbishop's residence on North Charles street. The most magnificent of the Council, the visiting clergy and seminarians of St. Stephen met at St. Alphonsus' Hall.

PENSACOLA.

A Quaint Old Southern Town, Full of Interest to Strangers.

If the Southern tourist will leave the beaten track of travel at Mobile, and go by steamer to Pensacola, he will enjoy a very pleasant break in the monotony of railroading. Mobile and its bay are all of historic landmarks, and when the steamer leaves Fort Morgan, and heads to sea for the short run down the coast, there is much that is of interest in the marine landscape.

The approach to Pensacola, as the Mary Morgan runs in, is of ever-varying beauty. Long lines of sandy beach and dark woodland point in converging lines to the distant harbor. Closer in, the tall light-house pointing finger-like heavenward, with a background of dark trees and peeping cottages, below which runs, like a ribbon of satin, the snow-white beach for miles. Presently the long ocean swell ceases, and we are in the harbor, and the first sight that meets the eye is the old fort.

The ruins of Fort McRea, now only a few massive arches of tough masonry towering amid the surges rising under their gloomy shadows, while opposite is Fort Pickens, a sturdy, craggy, and in fact, a land's end of historic Santa Rosa Island. In spite of its battle record it looks quite modern, with the great guns gazing vigilantly
